INTRODUCTION

Two themes have emerged from our visits in 2023 with 400 wineries in the U.S.-climate resilience and diversity in all its many forms.

Wineries are embracing more and more regenerative farming practices. That means changing rootstocks, going no till, and planting heat tolerant varieties. Or it can mean going organic, to better retain moisture in the soil. Energy is another accelerating, eco friendly direction—as wineries grow their solar power arrays and put new electric tractors into service.

Diversity in the people growing grapes and making wine is another theme. Korean and Indian families are now winery owners, bringing with them new food and wine pairings, and black and Hispanic wine professionals are working in greater numbers in positions of authority. In addition, many young winemakers are emerging, adventurously buying wine grapes from far and wide.

Varieties grown in the U.S. are also diversifying with new releases of Aglianico, Carricante, Fiano, Falanghina, Godello, Gouais Blanc, Nero d'Avola and others. At the same time, more historic vineyards and iconic wineries are getting time to shine, with growing recognition for the cultural and sensory delights they bring.

New regions are also gaining ground-the SLO Coast, York Mountain (outside Paso), and San Benito County are but a few of the places where wine growers are exploring new expressions.

Thanks to the stellar team work of this year's 14 field coordinators, the list of wineries has grown from 289 to more than 400.

We're grateful to our writers and to all the wineries we visited this year, as well as to our many readers and supporters. To the producers—thank you for sharing your wines, your practices and your insights with us so we can produce an annual guide that promotes transparency, dialog and delight. May it continue.

A COLLABORATIVE WINE NETWORK

The Slow Food Manifesto for good, clean and fair wine

The Manifesto for good, clean and fair wine is born from Slow Food's experience over the years, a long-standing relationship in which wine has played a crucial role, thanks to the passionate involvement of wine experts, winemakers and technicians.

Through the production and consumption of wine made according to the Manifesto, we aim to positively influence the future of viticulture, by breaking the ties from the use of chemicals and monocultures, and re-establishing our connection to biodiversity across terroirs and regions.

For some years now, vanguard vignerons from across the globe have understood and communicated that we must change course. This change, however, cannot happen by acting alone. For this reason, we are calling on wine lovers and professionals alike to come together and play a fundamental role in the promotion and consumption of wines with strong environmental, ethical and social values. This is important now, more than ever, as we navigate a period of economic and ecological reconstruction.

Through this interaction with other actors in the network, winemakers themselves will have the opportunity to be exposed to other fundamental subjects such as education to conscious consumption, the centrality of a narration focused on what is really important to tell (and to know) about each wine and the territory from which it comes from, as well as recognizing the right value of one's product.

Please consider - The wineries in this guide are inspired by the spirit of the Manifesto but it does not serve as the criteria for being listed in the guide.

SLOW FOOD MANIFESTOFOR GOOD, CLEAN AND FAIR WINE

Wineries must grow a minimum 70% of the grapes used in the production of their wine themselves.

Exceptions are given for regions in which widespread sourcing is common, e.g. Madeira, Napa Valley, the south of Spain, etc.

Wineries may not use chemically synthesized fertilizers, herbicides, or anti-botrytis fungicides.

A conscious and sustainable approach to the use of environmental resources in winemaking must be applied.

Dependence on irrigation systems must be limited and should only aim to avoid critical water-stress conditions.

Winery buildings, should they need to be constructed, must respect their environmental surroundings. Management, upkeep and eventual restauration of extant buildings should take sustainability into account.

Wineries should not utilize techniques like reverse osmosis or other physical methods of must concentration. Furthermore, the addition of RCGM (rectified concentrated grape must) or sugar (according to the country of production) is not permitted, with the exception of sparkling wines or wines where these practices fall under traditional techniques. Oak chips used to aromatize wines are also prohibited.

Permitted levels of sulfites should not exceed the limits listed under the European Union's regulations for organic wine.

The wines must show terroir and reflect their place of origin. It is for this reason that we encourage the use of indigenous yeasts, as well as scientific research to isolate native yeasts which can then be replicated and used by the winery or other winemakers of the same area and geographical denomination.

The wines must be free of any winemaking defects, as they tend to homogenize the wines and stamp out any regional identity.

Wineries should actively engage and collaborate with the entire surrounding farming community in order to strengthen and enhance the agricultural system of the area. In this vein, the winery must maintain a principled relationship with its associates, as well as its employees, fostering personal and professional growth. It is moreover important that the winery cooperates and shares knowledge with other producers, avoiding unfair competition.

Sustainable winemakers encourage biodiversity through practices such as: alternating vineyards with hedges and wooded areas; soil management practices that include grass and green manure and exclude, in any case, bare soil, with potential exceptions for short, seasonal periods; the protection of pollinating insects and useful fauna through the use of insecticides which are allowed in organic farming, where such interventions are necessary, and in any case avoiding their use during the flowering of the vine and of other herbaceous species present in the vineyard; the breeding of animals with respect for their welfare and the production of manure on the farm, as well as the production of compost from pruning residues and other organic materials.

HOW TO READ THE GUIDE

THE WINERY

BOTTLE Symbol awarded to wineries whose bottles represented excellent average quality at our tastings.

COIN Symbol awarded to wineries whose bottles are good value for money.

SNAIL Symbol awarded to a winery that we recognize for the way it interprets Slow Food values (sensory perceptions, territory, environment, identity) and also offers good value for money.

A winery which, either on the premises or in the immediate vicinity, offers food and refreshments.

A winery which, either on the premises or in the immediate vicinity, offers hospitality.

Prices

The prices indicated represent the suggested retail price as listed by the wineries.

THE WINES

TOP WINE The finest bottles from a sensory point of view.

> SLOW WINE Top Wines that, beyond their outstanding sensory quality, demonstrate terroir-related values such as history and identity, as well as offering good value for money. The attribution of this accolade implies the absence of any chemical herbicides in the vineyard. The Slow Wine accolade also considers value for money, taking into account the time and place of production.
